

Handbook Housing

A guide to finding accommodation for international Students

IO_GA_20250416

Content

What do I need to consider when looking for an apartment?	3
What are the rental prices in Frankfurt?	3
Single Apartment or Shared Apartment?	4
In which areas could I live?	4
On which websites can I find housing?	5
How should I apply?	6
What deadlines should I observe?	6
Important terms to consider	7
What should I look out for in the contract?	9
Tenancy rights: What rights do I have as a tenant?	11
How can I terminate my lease?	12
Beware of Housing Scams	13

Andrea Dubon 2025

What do I need to consider when looking for an apartment?

Finding a student accommodation in Frankfurt am Main is not the easiest process these days and can be stressful and demanding. For international students, there are a few things that are very important when you arrive in Germany. One of them is having an official residence, which you need to use to register in the city. Here are a few facts to consider before you decide to move to Frankfurt.

\Rightarrow What are the rental prices in Frankfurt?

Frankfurt is an expensive city, so it is important to consider your budget before you start your search. Rental prices vary depending on the district, but you can expect to pay between €500 and €1,000 per month for a one-bedroom flat. This is because the average rent in Frankfurt is at the moment around 18.49 €/m^2 .

There are also special dormitories for students in Frankfurt, but their number is limited. In addition to the state-run residences offered by the Studierendenwerk Frankfurt, there are a large number of private residences and shared flats. Therefore, you should start looking for accommodation as early as possible, because student dormitories usually have long waiting lists. To get a room from the Studierendenwerk (the cheapest accommodation in Frankfurt), you will have to wait about 6 months to a year for a place. You can also find private accommodation, but the price will be higher, starting with a rent of 500 euros or more per month.

Remember that you also have to factor in other costs such as utilities, internet and food.

What do I need to consider when looking for an apartment?

\Rightarrow Single apartment or shared apartment?

There are a variety of housing options in Frankfurt, including flats, shared flats and single-family houses.

Single flat:

In most cases with a single flat, you will have your own room with a bed, desk, private bathroom and kitchen already included in the room. If you already have everything, the price will of course be higher.

Shared apartment:

As a student, you will probably spend most of your time away from home, so a room in a shared apartment is one of the most likely options. Usually, one flatmate is the main tenant in a flat with several rooms. The kitchen and bathroom are shared by all flatmates. In some WGs (shared flats) there is also a common room. As a rule, each flatmate has their own room and pays rent according to the size of the room. The room may already be furnished or you may have to bring your own furniture.

The price of your room depends, of course, on where you live and what amenities you can enjoy during your stay.

\Rightarrow In which areas could I live?

The university is located in the city area "Norden" an. So when you start your search, you should consider whether you want to live close to the university (in the city centre) or a little further away. With your university ticket, you can travel around the whole state, so transport should not be a problem. Some districts that are generally considered cheaper are Griesheim, Nied, Ostend and Preungesheim. Cheap flats can be found mainly outside the city. If you live in the surrounding districts of the city, rents can be lower.

On which websites can I find housing?

\Rightarrow State and non-profit student residences

- Studierendenwerk Frankfurt.
- Bauverein katholischer Studentenheime e.V
- Evangelische Kirche in Hessen und Nassau
- Wohnrauminitiative Frankfurt e.V.
- Gemeinnützige Wohnungsgesellschaft mbH Hessen (GWH)
- Martin Luther King Haus Studentenwohnheim GmbH

\Rightarrow Private dormitories and flats

- Frankfurt School of Finance and Management GmbH
- The Fizz Frankfurt
- YOU5
- UNINEST
- Nassauische Heimstätte Geschäftsstelle Offenbach
- SMARTments
- wg-gesucht.de
- wohnraum-gesucht.de/wohnraumangebote

\Rightarrow You can find more dormitories and links on our website:

https://www.frankfurt-university.de/housing

How should I apply?

When searching for an apartment, you should never feel pressured. Even if the start of your studies is imminent, time constraints should not influence your decision.

\Rightarrow Here are some steps and tips to consider when applying for a room:

1. Write a professionally crafted email or cover letter briefly introducing yourself: discuss your personality, age, and studies, as well as your financial situation and how you plan to pay the rent (blocked account, parental support, student loans, etc.). This can leave a positive impression on the landlord.

2. When renting an apartment in Frankfurt, you will need to provide various documents, such as:

- \Rightarrow Self-disclosure form
- \Rightarrow Certificate of enrollment
- \Rightarrow Copy of your ID card
- \Rightarrow Certificate of rent debt-free status

3. Visit the apartment: Personally inspect the apartment (preferably with a friend). If possible, speak with the landlord and ask questions about rent, utilities, and maintenance.

\Rightarrow What deadlines should I be aware of?

At the beginning of the semester, demand for apartments is usually higher, making it more challenging to secure one during the months of March-April and September-October. It is also crucial to always be proactive, as a delayed response may result in your place in the apartment being offered to someone else.

Important terms to consider

\Rightarrow Miete/Rent:

Payment by the tenant for the use of a residence, set out in the tenancy agreement.

\Rightarrow Mietvertrag/Rental contract:

The tenancy agreement is a binding contract under the law of obligations that regulates the transfer of use (of a dwelling/room) for a certain period of time against ayment of an amount.

\Rightarrow Vermieter/Landlord:

Who, as owner or as his representative, disposes of his property in return for a payment.

\Rightarrow Mieter/Tenant:

Person who rents a flat.

\Rightarrow Untermieter/Subtenant:

Subletting occurs when all or part of the rental property is rented to a third party in exchange for money.

\Rightarrow Nachmieter/Next tenant:

The subsequent tenant joins an existing tenancy. He assumes the obligations of the previous tenant under the tenancy agreement towards the landlord.

Important terms to consider

\Rightarrow Hausmeister/Janitor:

Employee responsible for managing and cleaning a building.

\Rightarrow Mietkaution/Rent deposit:

An amount of money (usually 3 cold rents) that a tenant has to deposit as a guarantee for damages, unpaid rent or similar. At the end of the rental period, you get the deposit back if you have not caused any damage.

\Rightarrow Kaltmiete/Cold rent:

Rent portion charged only for the use of the rental property (living space), excluding heating costs.

\Rightarrow Warmmiete/Warm rent:

The rent including heating costs. In some cases also other costs such as energy, water, internet, etc.

\Rightarrow Einbauküche/Fitted kitchen:

A fitted kitchen is the furnishing of a kitchen with standardised and permanently installed furniture in terms of size and function.

\Rightarrow Mietschuldenfreiheit/ Rent debt freedom:

The rent debt-free certificate is a simple form used by a landlord to certify that the tenant has paid the rent regularly and on time in the past period.

What should I look out for in the contract?

It is very important to read the rental contract carefully because so many people have been scammed in this way. It is important that the contract is written in German. It is best to sign the contract in person and not digitally. If the agent tells you that he/she is abroad and therefore everything has to be stated digitally, do not accept this flat. Here are some more points that every rental contract should contain and that you should pay attention to.

\Rightarrow Rental price:

Check if the rental price is clearly defined and in which period the rent has to be paid. Do not accept hidden and unclear costs or fees.

\Rightarrow Deposit:

The amount of the deposit must be reasonable (usually 3 cold rents) and included in the contract. Also make sure that the exact conditions for the return of the deposit are clear.

\Rightarrow Rental period:

Check how long the rental period is stated in the contract and whether you have the option to extend or terminate the rental contract.

\Rightarrow Service charges:

Check which service charges are included in the rental price and what additional costs you may incur.

\Rightarrow Address of rental property:

In a tenancy agreement, the address of the rental property must be stated in any case and which flat it is. (Floor and house number)

What should I look out for in the contract?

\Rightarrow Living space

The contract must specify the number of rental living spaces, and in some cases, the price per square meter. The rent is calculated based on the number of living spaces and the price per square meter.

\Rightarrow Haustiere:

If you have pets or would like to have some, find out whether they are allowed and under what conditions.

\Rightarrow Renovierung:

Check whether you are allowed to make changes to the apartment or if the owner's permission is required. In some cases, it is only specified that the apartment must be returned in the same condition as you received it (painted walls, clean, etc.).

\Rightarrow Condition:

Make sure that the condition of the flat is described exactly in the contract to avoid disputes later on. Any damage to the flat that occurred before you moved in should be stated in the lease and who is responsible for repairing it.

\Rightarrow Notice periods:

Check that the notice periods are clear in the contract (usually 3 months before moving out) and what the conditions are for early termination.

\Rightarrow Contract penalties:

Find out about possible contractual penalties and whether they are justified.

If you are unsure, ask someone to check the tenancy agreement.

Tenancy rights: What rights do I have as a tenant?

\Rightarrow Right to a flat in accordance with the contract:

The rented flat must comply with the contractual agreements set out in the tenancy agreement.

\Rightarrow House right:

You have the right to be undisturbed in your flat. The landlord, on the other hand, is not allowed to visit the flat without a special reason and without prior notice, and in no case in the absence of the tenant. The landlord or the caretaker must always give notice of an inspection appointment.

\Rightarrow Visiting rights:

The tenant has the right to have guests in his flat. The landlord cannot forbid guests, just as he cannot forbid visitors who stay overnight. Nevertheless, guests must abide by the house rules. If you have visitors, they are usually not allowed to stay overnight for more than 6 weeks. If visitors stay for several weeks, it is best to check with the landlord so that this does not lead to problems.

\Rightarrow Reduction for rental defects:

The tenant can reduce the rent if the rented flat shows damage that impedes its usability or leads to a reduction in the quality of living. The legal basis for a rent reduction is § 536 BGB (German Civil Code).

\Rightarrow Claim to repayment of the rent deposit:

After termination of the tenancy and return of the flat, the tenant has a claim to repayment of the rent deposit. However, the landlord can keep this deposit for three to six months in order to check further claims such as additional service charge payments. To do so, he must submit the service charge statement.

How can I terminate my lease?

- \Rightarrow The notice of termination of a rental flat is usually only valid in written form. Here are the steps to terminate your tenancy:
 - 1. Check your tenancy agreement: Check your tenancy agreement and pay attention to the notice period and the conditions under which you can terminate the agreement.
 - 2. Write the notice of termination and state the date you want to move out of the flat. As a rule, you have to send the notice to the landlord at least three months before you want to move out in order to comply with the legal notice period.
 - 3. Send the notice of termination: Send the notice of termination by registered mail or give it personally to the landlord or the property management.
 - 4. Document the condition of the flat: document the condition of the flat and make sure it is in perfect condition before you move out. This will help you avoid possible discrepancies that could lead to problems when you return the flat.
 - 5. Make an appointment to hand over the apartment: Make an appointment with the landlord or property manager to hand over the flat. Make sure that this appointment takes place before the end of the notice period.
 - Hand over the flat: hand over the flat in the agreed condition and make sure that all keys are returned.
 Check the final statement: Check the final statement and make sure that all rent payments and possible repair costs have been paid.

It is important that you carefully check and comply with the notice period and terms of the tenancy agreement to avoid problems and inconvenience. If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact us.

Beware of Housing Scams

When looking for accommodation, especially online, it's important to stay elert. Unfortunately, fraudulent offers appear frequently. Here are some tips on how to protect yourself from housing scams:

\Rightarrow How to recognize a scam:

- 1. Too good to be true: The apartment is unusually cheap, large, and perfectly furnished, much cheaper than the average in the city? Be suspicious!
- 2. Landlord/landlady abroad: Scammers often claim that they are currently not in Germany and therefore cannot offer you a viewing.
- 3. Advance payment required: You are asked to transfer money (often via Western Union, PayPal Friends & Family, or bank transfer) before seeing the apartment or signing an official rental contract? This is a clear red flag!
- 4. No viewing possible: Any trustworthy landlord will allow you to view the apartment, either in person or via video call.
- 5. Pressure and urgency: Scammers often put pressure on you to pay quickly, claiming there are many other interested applicants.

\Rightarrow How can you protect yourself?

- Never pay in advance before seeing the apartment and signing an official rental contract.
- Never sign a contract you don't fully understand or that seems suspicious. If unsure, ask friends, your university, or advisory services.
- Google the name and address of the landlord and apartment you might find warnings about known scams.
- Use trusted platforms (e.g., WG-Gesucht, ImmobilienScout24) and look for verified listings.
- Ask for a video call to view the apartment if you're not in town.

\Rightarrow What to do if you become a victim of a scam:

- Do not send any more money!
- Report the scam to the police. Even if the money may not be recovered, your report can help protect others from falling victim.
- Notify the platform where you found the listing so the fraudulent ad can be removed.
- Contact us! We will support you in taking further steps and advise you on how to protect yourself.

The housing market in Germany can be challenging, especially for international students. However, with the right knowledge and some caution, you can avoid scams and successfully find suitable accommodation. Trust your instincts, ask questions, and never feel pressured.

\Rightarrow Trusted Housing Companies

To avoid scams, we recommend searching directly with established and reputable housing companies. Here are some trustworthy providers:

Trusted Housing Companies in Frankfurt: https://frankfurt.de/themen/planen-bauen-und-wohnen/wohnen/wohnungssuche

On this page, you will find a list of verified landlords and housing associations you can trust.

If you are looking in another city, check the official website of the respective city. Almost every city publishes a list of reliable providers and public housing companies.